

LostFoundKey

Fundraising Offer to:

Capital Region Women's Network

LostFoundKey is presenting the following offer to Capital Region Women's Network for its consideration:

Purchase a set of LostFoundKey tags at their regular price and the Capital Region Women's Network keeps 50% of the revenue.

Why use LostFoundKey tags?

Look at your key ring. It may hold car keys, house keys, office keys, post office box or safe deposit box keys, keys to your parents or children's home, and many more. How upset would you be if they became lost? Replacement costs for newer car keys are becoming more and more expensive, running anywhere from $75 to over $400. The loss of other keys may not be as expensive in monetary terms, but may cause tremendous inconvenience and/or stress. The use of a "name and address tag" can only put your safety and your assets at risk should they be found by some not as honest as you, and should never be used.

LostFoundKey tags are registered tags that protect the identity of the owner, yet provide a way for the finder to return the keys to the owner and even collect a small reward, with no additional cost to the owner.

How it works

Each LostFoundKey tag has a registered number that is stored in an encrypted database. The owner's identity is never revealed. Lost keys are always returned to the LostFoundKey administrative office, keeping the finder and owner separate for safety and security reasons. In addition to the registration number, each tag offers three different ways of returning the keys: drop into any mailbox (postage guaranteed), call the 800 number, or make contact through the website's email address. Also, each tag offers a reward for the return of the keys.

Pictures of both types of key tags are presented below.

- 1) LostFoundKey is a lost-key return service.
- 2) Two key tags (each with the same registration number) are purchased for a one-time fee.
- 3) The tags have a 'Return Postage Guarantee' to a PO Box, an 800 number, and a website address.
- 4) In addition, the tag offers a REWARD to the finder for returning the keys.
- 5) LostFoundKey pays all costs for the return of the keys, as well as the reward.
- 6) The tag's registration number is encrypted and stored in a secure database to protect the owner's identity and assets.
- 7) There are no additional charges and no limit to the number of times keys can be returned.
- 8) LostFoundKey does not sell, rent, or distribute in any way the owner's personal information contained in the database.
- 9) LostFoundKey has two primary objectives; protecting the identity and assets of the owner, and returning the keys to their owner as quickly as possible.
